STORYBOARDING

Elearning developers have found storyboarding to be a useful tool to bridge the communication gap that may exist between them and their subject matter experts. Come find out how elearning developers use storyboarding techniques to map out the content, design, and media for their courses.

ABOUT THE PRESENTERS

Summer Stinson is the Training Administrator for the Division of Medicaid and Medical Assistance. Her experience with elearning development started back in 2009 working with Proform eLearning Software for the Department of Finance. She continued to expand her eLearning knowledge working with Abode Captivate and now Articulate Storyline 2.

Lori Collier is a trainer for the Division of Medicaid & Medical Assistance. Her experience with developing elearning trainings began in 2007 using Captivate with the support of the Articulate community. In 2015, DMMA training and development began using Articulate Storyline2. For the most part, Lori develops online courses around technical topics involving using database systems and interpreting policy and procedure.
