A Community of Trainers and Aspiring Trainers

MENTAL HEALTH SUPPORT FOLLOWING A DISASTER

This specialized training provides perspectives on injuries and trauma that are beyond those physical in nature. The model of response to be presented is readily applicable to public health settings, the workplace, the military, faith-based organizations, mass disaster venues, and even the demands of more commonplace critical events, such as dealing with the psychological aftermath of accidents, robberies, suicide, homicide, or community violence.

ABOUT THE PRESENTER

Jim Deel is psychiatric social worker with the Department of Health and Social Services, the Division of Substance Abuse and Mental Health, Crisis Intervention Services for Southern Delaware. He is also a Delaware Medical Reserve Corps volunteer.
